A COLONIAL HOLIDAY CELEBRATION

Early American Music & Song

Monday, December 17, 7:00pm

Step back to yesteryear and Colonial America, where the holidays were filled with parlor music and popular songs. The Sloatsburg Library welcomes the Ministers of Apollo, artists and musicians devoted to replicating the sounds of 1776 and early American music. Join us for an entertaining program of music with delightful interludes of conversation about Colonial America musical customs. Light refreshments will be served.

Local History Corner

As the Village of Sloatsburg turns

90 years old in 2019, the Sloatsburg Public Library will celebrate 60 years of serving the community. In 1959, then Mayor John McAlevey and Susanne Dowler began accumulating books for a library. In 1975, the Village acquired St. Francis Episcopal Church (1904-1975) as a permanent home for the public library. St. Francis is an important historical village structure. The land and funds to build St. Francis were donated by Sloat descendants. The Chapel, as it was called, still provides an essential role in the community as part of the Sloatsburg Public Library.
